Software for Mobile Solutions

Individual software

Mobile solutions in health care, the service industry or manufacturing? When an SMS-based solution is no longer satisfactory because of limited functionality, there is a clever solution variant for a mobile device with individual software. Using the Windows Mobile operating system, a solid platform is made available for customised software systems which are characterised by simple operability and fast response time.

Solutions

You have an idea and image of what you need. With you, we determine your exact requirements for the planned mobile solution. We then examine whether a standard application supplies the desired functionality. Should that not be the case, then we provide a concrete offer for an individual solution. This can be implemented either on the mobile device or on the server. Advantage of the solution on the client is higher user comfort compared with an SMS-based system. An application installed on the server makes it possible to create an approach based on Web Service with lower maintenance cost. In addition, existing servers and data sources can be included, so that the user has unrestricted mobile access to all necessary data.
