

You handle more and more projects, and this with an increasing complexity. Creative, experienced project managers are in demand. Zühlke project managers with broad expertise take responsibility and lead your projects to success.

Our project manager - your successful project

The challenge

Project managers are responsible for time, money and scope with a defined level of quality. Successful projects achieve goals in a complex and constantly fluctuating environment:

- The customer is not just satisfied, but is thrilled by the product, which is likely to exceed their original expectations.
- Stakeholders are interested in the product and are actively involved in the project.
- The team is always committed and works constantly to achieve value. Budgets are adhered to and deadlines are met.
- The agreed product quality is achieved, as demonstrated by test procedures.
- Product documentation is available at the end of the project.

Are you also looking to realise successful projects? Then take a new route with us and our innovative approach to project management.

Our approach

Our “toolbox” of course includes traditional project management elements based on the “Guide to the Project Management Body of Knowledge” (PMBOK). We design projects to suit the specific context of your organisation and feel very comfortable in the agile world: on the basis of our experience, we use RUP and Scrum in order to, for example, embed agile elements in overarching models such as the V-model and Hermes.

Our project managers have practical experience with software engineering, which is an important pre-requisite to ensure that risks are not just managed but also correctly assessed. We always focus on your vision and requirements. We enjoy working with people and always maintain active communication with stakeholders and the project team. Open, honest and regular communication is very important to us. Your team will benefit from our experience and we will help lead your complex projects safely to the desired conclusion.

The benefits for you

- Certainty due to transparency.
- Certainty due to a strong network of Zühlke Competence Centers (with areas of focus such as project management, requirements engineering, testing, architecture).
- An approach optimally tailored to your specific context.
- Rapid identification and evaluation of opportunities and risks.
- Targeted communication keeps stakeholders involved throughout the whole project.
- Your team continues to develop its skills.
- Ongoing contribution of our project management experience in your organisation.

Your important project – your next success? Put your challenge in the hands of our project managers. Let our project management experts help you reach the desired goal. We look forward to your challenge.
