Business Cases for Mobile Applications

Modular project procedure

Mobile solutions open new possibilities for the support and rationalisation of business processes. They make it possible to gain genuine competition advantages. The optimisation potential must be carefully examined and the project set up as goal driven. The business processes are always in the foreground, not so much the technical solutions. Anchoring the project on the business side makes close cooperation with the IT imperative. Further central success factors are the acceptance of the users and the user comfort of the solutions.

Compiling business cases

- Analysis and optimisation of business processes with a focus on cost intensive and non profit making work procedures
- Definition of new or better performance through introduction of mobile solutions
- Quantification of the improvement potential and the investments necessary
- Calculation of the rate of return including sensitivity

- Meaningful demarcation and phasing of the project
- Clarifying success factors, risks and risk minimizing measures

Implementation examples

- The replacement of report forms makes a constant data flow possible
- Access to up-to-date product and customer data as well as facility documents
- Real-time information about the status of deliveries in a logistics chain
- Direct enquiry and constant optimisation of know how databases
- Dynamic deployment and route planning
